Course Description per the Course Catalogue

Fulfills Criminal Justice capstone requirement. Requires consolidation of information, skills, and knowledge learned throughout students' undergraduate studies, particularly in the core and research areas, to conduct independent research to further develop their understanding of criminology as a science, contemporary issues and techniques in digital forensics, and/or other criminal justice topics.

Course Overview

You have all been through multiple years of training and are close to earning a degree in Criminal Justice with an emphasis in Criminology. This class is a culmination of your years of college education. In this class, you will be tasked with choosing a research topic and writing a credible, academic article in your chosen area of expertise. The end result will be a research project that is of the quality of work found at the Annual Conference of either the American Society of Criminology or the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences. This work will be presented in both a written article and in a presentation at the end of the semester. You can think of this project as the crown jewel in your college education. It is your opportunity to show the world what you have learned and what you can do with it!

Lastly, Samuel Johnson said that, "Mankind has a great aversion to intellectual labor; but even supposing knowledge to be easily attainable, more people would be content to be ignorant than would take even a little trouble to acquire it." With this in mind, I have labored to make this class effort based. In theory, this means that those who are willing to labor to gain knowledge should be those who receive the greatest reward. This will not be a perfect system, however I hope this class provides those willing to work with a great chance at success. I hope we can help each other stay motivated and excited throughout our time together. Please do not hesitate to ask for my help if it is ever needed. I am more than happy to assist you in any way that I can. I may not have the answer you're looking for, but I will do my best.

Course Objectives

By the end of this course, students will have developed critical thinking skills in criminology and criminal justice and will be able to apply criminology and the study of criminal justice. This objective will be shown through the following outcomes:

- A. Distinguish personal views from knowledge based on empirical research that addresses criminal behavior and the criminal justice system.
- B. Connect real, diverse facts to criminological theories.
- C. Use criminological theory and crime trends to address criminal behavior within certain contexts.
- D. Identify key applied areas in the discipline and determine whether an applied specialty can provide a solution for a given problem.
- G. Apply criminological theory and proper research methods to varying criminal behaviors or functions within the criminal justice system.

Contacting Me

The easiest way to get a hold of me is via email, not via Canvas. Although my voicemails do get forwarded to my email account, I only return phone calls from my office phone. I will, however, respond to emails (not Canvas messages) from remote locations (i.e. home, conferences, off-campus meetings, etc.). I will check and respond to emails periodically Monday through Friday between 8:00 am and 5:00 pm. If you email me past 5:00 pm or over the weekend, I will respond to you the following working day.

Grades and Assignments

The assignments in this class are as follows: There is one 25 page paper and a presentation on that paper that will take place at the end of the semester.

Capstone Paper – Each student will design and conduct an appropriate research project of their choice. This can be done by performing a quantitative, qualitative, or mixed methods study; a content analysis; a program/policy analysis; a theory paper; or an expansive literature review/summary. The paper will need to be written in either the APA or ASA format. I will have weekly or biweekly meetings with each student to help mentor and guide you all through this process. Attending these meetings will be factored into the grade you earn on the paper. Portions of your paper will be due throughout the semester to ensure it is being completed in a suitable and timely manner. Although these sections will not be assigned a grade, they need to be turned in on the due date in order to receive feedback. If they are turned in after the due date, I may not have time to offer revision suggestions.

Presentation – Each student will present the results from their project at our end of the semester research conference. The presentation will need to be 8-10 minutes long. (Yes, I will time you!) It is required that each student prepare a visual companion to their presentation. It should include pertinent information from the project such as tables, graphs, etc.

Turning In Papers Through Canvas and Turnitin

You will need to submit each section and the full project through Canvas by 11:59 pm of the due dates indicated on the class schedule. No late papers will be accepted, no exceptions. By turning in the papers via Canvas, it also enables us to use the Turnitin program to ensure academic honesty and integrity are characteristics of all papers submitted by you and your classmates. To this end, you must make sure your papers receive a “similarity score” of 5% or less to qualify for grading. Conversely, if a paper receives a score of 6% or higher, it will not receive a grade and you will receive zero points for the assignment.

In order to utilize Turnitin as an educational tool too, I have set the program to allow you to see your “similarity score” shortly after you have submitted your assignment. (A word of advice: plan time to wait for your “similarity score” into your “assignment time”. Turnitin is like any other program and can be fast at times and slow at others.) Using Turnitin in this manner will allow you to better understand how to properly cite others’ thoughts while putting these thoughts in your own words. Simply putting quotation marks around all the “flagged” passages is not an appropriate fix and, ultimately, will negatively affect your score. I know the process of learning how to engage the thoughts and words of others and making them your own can be frustrating at times, but most new, valuable skills are not acquired without some sincere effort.

Lastly, it is your responsibility to make sure your paper is submitted with the proper “similarity score”. In order to help you with this, I make the following concession: I will not begin grading your papers until two days after the due date found on the class schedule. I will, however, log on to Canvas the morning after the due date to make certain all the papers have been turned in on time. This gives you the motivation to get your papers in by the due date, but offers you a bit more flexibility to make the necessary changes to your paper in order to reach the 5% “similarity score” benchmark. If you are having honest problems with reaching the “similarity score” standard (after having done all you can do on your own), please come talk to me about it and we will work together to find an appropriate solution.

Class Academic Dishonesty/Academic Integrity Policy

I believe that most students are honest, and I don't want to punish everyone for the few that aren't. Nonetheless, I want it to be clear that I will not tolerate cheating. When I discover that it has occurred, a failing grade will be given for the entire course, no questions asked. If you are a repeat offender, I will request a more serious sanction be imposed (i.e. notation of academic misconduct on your permanent academic transcript, academic probation, dismissal from the program, dismissal from college, etc.).

If you need additional detail about what cheating consists of follow this link to the “Student Rights and Responsibilities Code”: <http://www.dixie.edu/humanres/policy/sec5/533.html> (Section 4).
