The Course:

This course examines the "problems" of our world as social constructions. We will investigate the processes by which activists, experts, and the media make claims about what they perceive as injustices and inequalities in their worlds. We will examine the roles of the public, policymakers, and social problems workers in the social problems process. By the end of the course you will understand that what are popularly considered problems are culturally relative. The only thing that all social problems have in common is that people claim them to be.

Course Objectives:

Students completing Social Problems should:

- demonstrate an understanding of the ideas, people, and events that are generally thought to be important by sociologists of social problems;
- demonstrate an understanding of the sociology of social problems as a scientific discipline (i.e. the gathering and analyzing of empirical data in a systematic fashion);
- demonstrate an understanding of the various theoretical perspectives (i.e. functionalist, conflict, constructionist) sociologists use to understand social problems.

Texts:

Joel Best. Social Problems. W. W. Norton.

Ira Silver. Social Problems Readings. W. W. Norton.

Evaluation:

Grades will be based on the following:

- Three exams, each worth twenty-five percent of your final grade.
- A term paper worth twenty-five percent of your final grade.

Exams :

You will take three exams. Each will be a mix of multiple choice and essay questions. Exam dates are September 25, November 4, and December 16.

Paper :

You will write a paper that applies the concepts we learn in class to a social problem of your choice. I will make available the paper assignment on September 30, the paper is due on December 4. LATE PAPERS WILL BE GRADED DOWN ONE FULL GRADE.

Attendance :

Attendance is not mandatory. However, I lecture on material that is not in the text. There will be exam questions from my lectures that are not from the text. If you miss class you risk missing information that will be on the exam.

NOTE: Your final grade is based on your lettergrades, not on your accumulation of points.

ANOTHER NOTE: You must complete all exams and assignments to pass this class.
